“ I remember when Charlie's brother Steve Granger, Jr. had a major stroke and was placed in a nursing home. Charlie and his niece they called Linda Carol told Steve's wife they would help her by storing a house full of furniture an keepsakes that Steve and his wife had bought over the nearly 40 years together including expensive Thomas Kinkade Art collectibles worth a lot more than they paid for them as the artist known has the Painter of Light had passed away making the items priceless. A very large rolling tote full of Avon glass and ceramic dated ornaments which Charlie allowed his then wife and other smash with a baseball bat not caring the value. Linda Carol laid claim to their handmade antique dinning table that sat 8 people and chairs, a real redwood bedroom set that included 2 dressers, a man's stand-up armoire, a stand-up tv armoire, and 2 night stands. Linda Carol also would not return the couple of 10 records that had been given to Steve's wife by her mother when she past that included collector additions of many Hank William, Sr. and Jr. albums, and many, many more. Over 500 VHS and DVD movies purchased from Feature Films for families, Blockbuster, and in stores. These people did not know the value of the items collected over the years by Steve and his wife, not only monetarily but the love and togetherness share in those item. I am sure Charlie is reaping what he sowed and I know Linda Carol and that whole family will also. The whole family is a GREEDY, SELFISH, LYING bunch of THIEVES.

“ Charlie is my brother-in-law and was a very good person, not to mention how religious he was. He used to come down to New Orleans on the weekends and preach the Bible to his brother, Marvin. He will be sadly missed.
