

Mandy James Wilson

January 30, 1959 - February 1, 2024

Mandy “Jo” James-Wilson, 65, passed away on February 1, 2024. Born on January 30, 1959, in Greenville, S.C., she rose above an abusive childhood to become a woman of immense talent, compassion, and wisdom. Mandy embraced many occupations throughout her life — nurse, troubleshooting manager for Arby’s, and chandelier designer among them. She had a wealth of life experience and never hesitated to uplift those who needed a listening ear, an entertaining story, or a piece of heartfelt advice delivered in her no-nonsense way.

Mandy married her beloved wife Emma James-Wilson on October 1, 2015. She is also survived by her daughter and son-in-law Jeannette Britt Keenan and Chad Keenan.

Mandy believed that funerals were for the living, not for the dead. A celebration of life will be hosted at a later time in accordance with her wishes.

Tribute Wall

LF

“ Mandy was one of kind! A woman of many talents but all a very good friend. I will miss getting into trouble with her and her sage advice. She faced unimaginable challenges throughout her life and rose above them all. Wishing you peace my friend -

laura freeze - February 07, 2024 at 07:35 PM

“ Mandy loved life and lived it to the fullest! Young people enjoyed talking with her as she shared her life experiences with them. She understood young folks and was able to guide them through difficult times. She loved being a Girl Scout Adult Volunteer! Her nickname at the Girl Scout Camp was "Sheriff" as she kept everyone in line and on their toes! Her love and laughter will be missed.

Loretta Britt - February 07, 2024 at 06:36 PM

RR

“ Mandy was delightful to be around. She loved her 3 cats and all her friends loved her too. Fly high my friend.

Raquel Riddle - February 05, 2024 at 09:22 AM