“ I met Mike while attending SLU in Hammond. We studied The Calculus with a young first year graduate of LSU. He started writing on the board as as soon as it was time for class to start, better be in your seat and ready, our teacher, Edgar, wrote with one hand and erased with the other. He never turned around from the board until class was over and he kept a supply of drop slips on his desk for students having problems keeping up. We usually spent most mornings, after the 8 AM class in the coffee shop drinking coffee and working Calculus problems. I know the younger students must have thought we were a bit touched, drinking coffee, trying to solve Calculus problems and write proofs 5 days a week. If it hadn't been for Mike's help, I doubt I would have made the grade in that class. As the years passed we became very good friends. I miss you my friend.

“ Mike has been my friend for 25 years and My hubby Freddie for almost 45 years. The last time I saw him we were on our front porch, he was playing his guitar and we were singing together and laughing. It was only a week before he went into the hospital for the last time. Mike will be so very missed.
