“ I was and still am very lucky for Mr. Murlin to be my pawpaw. He was definitely an amazing pawpaw. It seems like a horrific dream, I wish it was but I know it's not. When I go outside early in the morning I catch myself looking at his garden thinking I would see him and that he was out there tending to his garden. I know it seems weird but there's a tree by his house and I was crying one day I went by the tree and hugged it I know it sounds very weird and it makes me seem dumb but it sort of felt that my pawpaw was hugging me. My pawpaw loved God so much. You could always find my pawpaw laying in his recliner while he was reading his Bible or tending to all the manly stuff he sure did stay busy working. My pawpaw loved his dog a lot. But he loved my mawmaw more. He always made sure she was taking care of. My pawpaw made sure that he taught me and my cousins everything we needed to know before he died. He loved my mom and my aunt and my mawmaw more than words can express. I thank him so much for making sure we didn't have to worry for a second about where he went. My pawpaw is very much loved and missed. I <3 U SOO MUCH PAWPAW. REST IN HEAVEN###imported-begin###Karli McDonald###imported-end###

“ My precious daddy was a rock! You could lean on him any time you needed to and he would be steadfast for you even when you couldn't be. He loved unconditionally. I loved first his God, then his wife, his children, and then his grandchildren. He took great delight in seeing those babies grow older and was very much a part of who they have now become. I am very sad to say that we no longer have our rock, but the love that I have for my rock is a flame that will NEVER die. Daddy, I light this candle in honor of your precious, sweet, loving memory!!!! I love you my daddy!!!!###imported-begin###Pam Cunningham###imported-end###
