“ I worked with Raymond for a relatively brief time in 2011. I'd been hired as part of the "refresh team" AKA tech support for Bell Helicopter. Even though I was severely underqualified for the job (and equally as undeserving), Raymond worked hard to teach me what he knew. I learned that in addition to working for Bell, Raymond had two other jobs that took up the remainder of his time, a work ethic I could only ever hope to aspire to. Unfortunately I never got to know him very well beyond our shared interest in filmmaking. But I'll always appreciate the effort he put into keeping me from being a nervous wreck while I worked with him. There wasn't a question I had that he didn't have either a funny or helpful answer for. Thank you for helping this dumb kid find some confidence. Rest in peace, Raymond.

PS. I still have the flash drive you gave me with 'migrate.exe' and a helpful Outlook transfer document you made for the team

Thank you for your kind works. He really liked working with computers... but more making films.
