“ To Mike's family and close friends my deepest condolences. Mike came with us to Afghanistan and was assigned to our platoon which I later took over towards the end of the deployment. He was a hard-working, funny, smart-ass... which to me are excellent qualities to have, especially in a combat zone. He will be missed.

Best wishes,

“ Mike,

When you became a member of the 3rd Squad in the 205TH ENGR BN, I took responsibility for you as your squad leader. I will always remember the times at drill when you would give me that head knod. That was my signal that it was time for our monthly chat. It always had to be just us and no one else. You were smart and wanted everything to be perfect in your life. I know those talks helped because you would always update me the next month at drill on every issue we discussed the month before. You would never forget anything that we discussed even if I tried to change the subject to make you laugh or throw you off. Then, there was Shawn Walters, your buddy. I remember the times both of you laughed at me when it took me hours to find where you both were hiding from me at drill. Man, I just thought those were good times until we were deployed to Afghanistan. I promised you that I would keep a close eye on you because you always told me that you could not wait to get home and start your life all over. I know that the talks we had there really changed the way you looked at everything. Its hard now knowing that I did not get the chance to check on you lately because I would have really liked the opportunity to have you give me one more update on Mike. I will miss you Mike! I can say this though...you were one good dude who cared about everyone!!! I know that we will one day get the chance to talk again.

Thanks For The Great Times!!

“ A friend I could count on no matter what problem may occur. Mike and I use to say we had a guardian angel whatching over us. We've been through things that most people wouldnt make it through. I was 22 years old when I wrecked a 97 MIT eclipse my passenger was mike. We were traveling at a speed of 115 mph while hitting a Colbert rolling the car six times. the best part was when I asked mike if he was ok his reply was he was fine. We had some crazy times together but he was my best friend. I'm glad that I have him watching over me now. He was a good loving man. He was the type of person who would help you out even if he had to suffer by doing so. I love you mike always. Until the day I see you again I'll always remain to talk to you.I know you can hear my words. You're the best!!###imported-begin##Jason###imported-end##
