The Legend of Sweet Ann

Sweet Ann, age 54, left her earthly body on Mother's Day. She was a resident of the world, a great mother who sacrificed for and loved her daughters above all, was a self-taught artist who shared life as freely as she lived it. She loved to travel and see the world with her friends was completely selfless and volunteered her time and love for those in need. Her art is published in various national magazines, tattooed many but not limited to New Orleans Saints players, famous artists and actors, and was quick to express her eclectic love for music. Sweet Ann was a well-known social icon in her community. Her talents had great impact on the generations of artists coming up after her. Sweet Ann was an eccentric woman, who lived a colorful life. To know her was to love her.
