“ This goes out to Tena's girls & her brother & sister. Michelle, I don't know if you will remember this or not, but Tena & you were my backbone when my Mom passed. I can remember being at the viewing & was really loosing it, felt like I couldn't suck in enough air & that I was going to pass out & Tena & Michelle were right with me hugging me & helping me. Maybe this will show you girls & Michelle & Robert just how much I love you. this is just what loving families do & I do love your Mom & sister so very much. She's one in a million & has lite up my life many, may times. I love & miss you already sooo much my Tena girl. Go rest with the angels, sweetheart.##imported-begin##Delaine Bowers Croft##imported-end##

“ I remember once, when Bonnie and Tena visited me at home in Baton Rouge. I was working in the garden out back. When I moved to Baton Rouge, I moved most of my garden from my old house in Springfield and transplanted everything...even the roses. Some of the rose vines I had for 10 years, and they don't like to be moved. When I put them in the garden in the spring of 2010, they took a long time before they would settle in and grow any leaves...and no flowers.....until the spring of 2011...then there was an explosion of roses...Tena and I were talking about all the different flower plants I had back there, she had lots of ideas about doing a flower garden at her home, but I think the roses were her favorite. While roses can be delicate and beautiful, they can also have strong vines and very sharp thorns. I sent a rose home with Tena that day, and she joked that her husband might wonder who was giving her such beautiful flowers. I told her not to worry, just tell him that friends always share flowers from their gardens with one another.

Life can be like roses: delicate, strong, thorny.....but always beautiful in some way. I'll always remember Tena in the rose garden.

“ The first time I met Tena was Thanksgiving, the first year Bonnie and Mark were married, 2009. I think we both were a bit nervous to meet each other. She had been cooking food enough for a huge feast. We talked for a bit, and I got the distinct impression that she was a kind and caring person: a good woman. She loved her family, and now my son too. And BOY, could she cook! Everything was delicious! We shared a few stories of our kids' childhood years, and ended up being quite comfortable after all. I am grateful for having a chance to get to know such a treasure.

*I will miss you Tena. xox##imported-begin##Elle
